Rival Student Chief Blisters CIA's Aid

The National Student Association was blistered Wednesday in Oklahoma City by the national president of a rival organization for receiving CIA funds.

Robert P. White, University of Oklahoma junior and national president of Associated Student Governments of the United States of America said NSA had abused its cause by taking funds from CIA.

"NSA should not be involved in politics. It should only provide an exchange of views on issues affecting college students," White said.

NSA is tax exempt because it receives funds from the government for educational purposes, he added.

"The Internal Revenue Code states that no group which is tax exempted for educational purposes can be involved in politics," White said.

White commented that Wednesday's disclosure that CIA finances NSA "makes me wonder how so many of their national staff members have avoided the draft."

The ASG was formed in 1964 at OU and national headquarters are in Oklahoma City. Over 120 student governments are members of ASG.

White said Monday his organization had never been approached by the CIA and would refuse funds if contacted.

"We are non-political and exist to help plan more effective student governments," he said.

White said ASG has a $25,000 budget but funds come usually from member groups.

"Each member group pays $100 annually. We have received donations from other groups but they usually involve small amounts."
